SUBJECT: Supplement to Interrogation Research Division Annual Agency Report FY 1972

1. Work continues on the investigation of examiner consistency and inter-examiner agreement on polygraph chart interpretation and on the development of computer analysis of chart patterns. Collection of live-case data for this use was completed in FY 1972 and a major examiner agreement study was conducted using this data. Results of the agreement study are beginning to come in.

6. It should be noted that IRD Research efforts are generally conducted in coordination with DD/S&T components - in the above cases ORD/MBSD and OSI/LSD.
